August 2016

We minister to children on the street in Piedras Negras.

Rosita (left) and her fiancé Evangelist Adolfo (right) pray for a man on the street in Piedras Negras. They are joined by one of our Casa Jovenes Del Rey boys.

In natural medicine, we are free to minister under the covering of our church, Iglesia Pacto de Paz.

Rosita walks the railroad tracks in Piedras Negras to deliver food to families in need.

Dear Partner:

God bless you! We are blessed with opportunities to spread the Gospel in a greater way than ever before! During the years of operating Christian homes for children we rejoiced as each child made his or her profession of faith in Jesus. But we are even more thrilled today as some of these same children have grown up to become ministers of the Gospel in their own right!

For instance, Fabiola, who grew up in Casa Del Rey, and her husband Pedro conduct an outreach ministry for children in their area.

In addition, they conduct weekly nutrition classes. Juliana attends the nutrition classes at Rancho Jovenes Del Rey in the Jiménez/Dolores community where she learned about Jesus. Her children also attend the outreach ministry. The Gospel is preached in every class session. Fabiola entered our home when she was eleven.

Then there's Rosita who, with Evangelist Adolfo and a young man from the boys' home (Casa Jovenes Del Rey in Piedras Negras), pray with a man on the street to find Jesus. Rosita (Rosa Elia) entered Casa Del Rey when she was six.

Yes, we still have children in each of our four homes. The children whom we now care for want to be here and they do what is necessary to be able to stay. We will be publishing pictures next month in our "Christmas in September" newsletter. Your prayers and financial support are developing these kids into strong men and women of God! Thank you.

In addition to our children's homes ministry and street ministry, I thank God for a wide-open evangelistic opportunity through the door of natural medicine! As Bobby points out in his enclosed letter, "Our work on the street looks much like evangelism without medicine. We look for a need, offer help, and find those who are interested in changing their lives. Medicine is a valuable tool in this kind of work. In contrast to the operation of children's homes, medicine opens many government offices to us since they are always looking for community help. Mexico's healthcare system is socialized and therefore anything that will reduce the burden on the healthcare system is appreciated."

Thank you for your faithfulness in prayer and support. Without you, now grown-up "children" like Rosita and Fabiola might never have know the love of Jesus, nor become such powerful ministers in their adult life!

Somehow I feel like the little boy as he slurped his three-tier ice cream cone: "This just keeps gettin' gooder and gooder!"

Through our partnership with Evangelist Adolfo's ministry, you are reaching new neighborhoods with financial help and with the Gospel. Bless The Lord!

These children received Jesus in a nutrition class led by Fabiola. Praise the Lord!
